My dear Mother

My return of the paper I could not write a few lines at her time to you of my gratitude for the most kind letter which I have just received and which in every way has benefited my feelings — The benefit of being ever to love is to have me not one of the least in countenance that lives in pleasure I shall however be a grateful & distinguishable many to the me the impudently impudence yet if it does not show me reason to the I do think I may add that I will do both I take off from my feelings, and be the pain to me thereby arising from the distressing circumstances — I thank you and think that the very kind & generous planner in which we have lived we your command for that which I wish for first in life. My mind more pleasure in be felt more certainly than by me

That I may always with your indulgence & affection believe me is the constant & sincere wish of

My dear Mother

Your faithful
& dutiful child
