[1817]

Half past five o'clock A.M. 4 Nov.
My dear Sir Benjamin Blount
"Nothing can be going on better" those were the words at 3 o'clock - I have not seen him since, which we all think a favorable omen, and that he is in the occupation we desire - He told me at 3 o'clock - that the symptoms were more violent - and that he had recommended that to go to bed - This increased violence had been attended with the usual, and most favorable symptoms - H H continues to bear all without a murmur - I write this / tho' still so unsatisfactory, by a private hand just starting for Fulton House in hopes Mr Watson will be get it in time to forward for me -

~~My~~ ~~dear~~ ~~friend~~ has every perfect confidence - I hope my dear Sir I convey that to you in what I say in this hurried manner - I thought you wd prefer it to not hearing at all tho' literally at such a moment, my letters cannot convey any thing decisive - except her H & safety and going on so much to the satisfaction - But it is impossible for us not to feel anxious even under his appearance - Had he any doubt, he w^d have asked in other advice I know - This is the best news I can give I think -

Ever your most faithful Robert Gordon
