My dear Lord!

I have but recently returned from Paris, and trouble Your Lordship reluctantly with these lines as His Majesty's indisposition will take up so much of Your time. But I should beg Your Lordship to have the goodness to convey to His Majesty my humble duty, as well as the expressions of my deepest concern at

The King's present indisposition

Whenever the King will be well enough to receive me I shall be to happy to wait on His Majesty, without however laying the least claim to His favor as long as it may prove of the slightest inconvenience to His Majesty.

With sentiments of the highest esteem I remain

My dear Lord
yours most faithfully
Leopold
