Stuttgart December 24th 1819.

Sir

An unpleasant Complaint in my Head and Eyes has a long time deprived me of the honour of writing to Your Majesty. I must even now have recourse to Your Majesty's goodness to forgive my hand not being so good as usual my Eyes being still very weak.

I am at present very happy in the Company of dear Adolphus who has spent a few days with us. He is so good and amiable

That where ever he goes he is beloved, here every body is charmed with him but that is very natural as he is so kind to be pleased with every thing. We have shewn him Louisbourg which he likes though the Season is not favourable for the beauty of a place that is very much wooded.

Adolphus has been so good as to give me an account of the beautiful Lodge that Your Majesty has built in Windsor as also of the improvements you are making at the Castle which will make it the most perfect
