

To
The King

Duchess of Brunswick

[Undated]

51959

Sir

I hope you dont believe that its owing to my chafing that the Dukes letters dont go the same road they used to do, its Perry that recieved a letter which was tore, they always knew that they were opened but this accident has made them find out an other way to send them. you was so good in your last to mention a desire of my paying my duty this summer. nothing can make me so happy & the P. also. I did not answer it in my last as the Duke must not know that I have such a thought till the moment we go.

when you write to invite<sup>us</sup> it must be a letter that I can show, & in so pressing a manner that we can not refuse it, with out great ill breeding, I am to tell the Duke for his son is always friend when he is to go a journey that I always brack the ice for him. I am

Sir
Your Majesty's most dutiful subject & sister
