Bransvic April 29th 1795

My brother

A few hours after 1st Col. Hislop had left us, the Duke receiv'd a sum more to go to Potsdam, where all is in alarm at the Empress's threatening mepage. Il se laisse aller par la Druille but if he is oblig'd to give his opinion it will be, to convince the King that he has nothing but Villains about him, that could have advis'd him to dishonour himself by making a separate peace

I ever am dear brother

Your most affectionate grateful humble servant
