My dearest brother

Here is my justification, & I hope that this for the future will prevent thoughtlessness, or neglect, I avail myself of this as a reason for writing to thank you my dearest brother for the pleasant day that spent yesterday being unalterably your most sincerely attached humble servant & Subject

Augusta

1833

Handwritten text on a piece of aged, yellowed paper with faint vertical lines. The text is mostly illegible due to fading and bleed-through from the reverse side. Some words are faintly visible, including "1833" at the top, "London" in the middle, and "No. 1" at the bottom. The paper is mounted on a larger, blank sheet of aged paper.
