Göteborg August 4th 1772.

Sir,

I should have wrote sooner to You if I had not waited for an answer to my last letter I own I was very much hurr to get it from Mad<sup>e</sup> de Westrope, to who I had never mention'd Mad<sup>e</sup> d'Orteda, before this answer come she propos'd to me in Your name a Mad<sup>e</sup> de Starberg who can not speak french, and Monsieur de Vergy, who I have no objection to, but I would wish that You would write me word of it as I am perswaded it will make a great many mistakes, if a third party medles between us. since that time she has told me that You would give me leave to draw money from the Bank, which I have likewise refused, for if I was to do it, I should always be afraid of taking a greater sum than You intended me, so will rather wait, till the sum You intend for me is fixed. I hope You will not take ill all that I have said in this letter. I assure You it only proceeds from my wish of keeping well with You, and that I am sure it will make a great confusion if You send me such things word by other people. I am dear Brother Your most affectionate Sister Caroline M.

in it
