

Prince of Wales. 54055
June 4th 1747

Friday 8. a clock.

Y^r Booble, Notwithstanding the hurry I am in, and the Multiplicity of business I have, I ca'nt omit writing to Y^r to give Y^r an account of an Intelligence I have Just got, (I wish it may be a false one) tis that the two Pelhams have come to a determination to attack the Duke of Somerset at Milbourn, & is en Saiet, that they are Joi'nd by S^r J Leachy, tho' this may be but the eye of the clay, but tis worth while to enquire, and be upon ones Guarb.
Tho' I'd be Sorry on Y^r account Y^r Booble, I may find ways to bring Y^r in Should Y^r lose it, or may be the ^{D^{ee}} might, at Coosermouth, Should ^{S^r Lth Win} I have carry Saunton; but this is not my real Concern, but I ca'nt help being vex'd to see these fellows Insolence. Arise at some body so respectable, and so stand a friend to my Family, in the worst of times too, as the ^{D^{ee}} is. Where will they stop, and what must Mansind expect in General, when the first Subject, in Rank, dignity, and Worth, is not to be spar'd. Make use of this as Y^r please, I repeat it, my Concern is the Impertinence against the Duc, if I hear more I'll send Y^r a Servant. Things in the West, and in Dorset have a good aspect. G^m Flanelariele has join'd us, has thrown up his Government, and fights the cause at Scarff J^{re} Jansen at Heyden, these difficult things have been settled at last, if they can make Im pressions, they'll get Sunds. Don't be beat D^r Boole, and depend on Y^r affectionate

Frederick P

Many Compliments to the D^{uce} and Dutchess, there never was such Violence as these par flabile fratrum comitt, but I have no more time Relien, I am in spirits, and very well.
