My Dear Sir,

I take the earliest opportunity of returning you my thanks for your great kindness to me during my late Indisposition. I really was so faint and weak, the last time you was so good as ^{to} call upon me, that I could ^{not} speak, tho' I equally felt the pleasure of seeing you so happy, at the ^{late} fortunate explanation, and Reconcilliation. I know how much your time must be taken up now, but when ever you shall favour me with a Visit, I shall be highly flattered. If the Weather will detain me some days at home, or I should certainly call at Cartleton House

Your Affectionate Uncle and Humble Servant
William Henry
