Lord Grenville also begs leave to mention to Your Majesty that the Prince Stadholder has expressed to him thro' M. de Hagell his wish to be allowed to to pay his respects to Your Majesty tomorrow at St. James's rule applied to the Hereditary Prince, & to Prince Frederic respectively.

Mr. Pitt has acquainted Me with Lord Amherst's very handsome willingness to remove my difficulty of placing My son the Duke of York by retiring from the Staff; this is so consonant to other marks of attachment I have received from Lord Amherst, that though it meets with my Approbation, it occasions no surprise, I wish at the same time to give him some mark of Approbation, I would therefore propose that His Majesty in His Acceptance of an Advance in the Service or what may be more agreeable to him, be made a Field Marshal to which Rank I mean also to advance the Duke of York. Mr. Pitt I know has explained my intention that the grant of the Lands in Canada shall

Hartlebury Castle Feb. 11th 1795

Sir

I feel myself so much oppressed by your Majesty's most gracious Letter of the 9th, that I know not in what terms to acknowledge the receipt of it. It was natural for me to wish that a Discourse of mine, on a subject I had so much at heart, might be honoured with your Majesty's acceptance, but the vanity of an author could not suggest to me the idea of so marked an approbation, if your Majesty condescends to give of it.

It was taking too much upon me to hazard the outline of the late Chief Justice's character, in so few & weak words: but your Majesty's knowledge & favourable opinion of him would easily supply what is wanting in my sketch. So that it is to your true judgment, rather than to the weak efforts of my pen, that your Majesty's partiality to this part of my little performance is to be ascribed.

Permit me, Sir, to take this opportunity of expressing the mortification I feel in not being able to take my part in the public congratulations on the approaching marriage of his Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales. The advanced age of 76.

would, of itself, be no excuse of my absence on this occasion, if many attending infirmities did not absolutely disable me from discharging this duty. The felicity, w^{ch} this Union promises to your Majesty, to his Royal Highness, to every part of the Royal family, & to the whole nation, is an object not to be contemplated by me without the most feeling satisfaction.

I am infinitely sensible of the honour done me by her Majesty's condescending notice of my indisposition. I can only lament that I deserve this goodness so little. So long as I live, however, I cannot fail to put up my fervent prayers to Heaven that every blessing, that is consistent with this probationary state, may be vouchsafed by the Parent of all good, to your Majesty's.

I am,

Sir,

Lord Grenville has the honour to submit to your Majesty a draft to Lord Malmesbury containing the particulars of the arrangement which on confer-ring with Lord Spencer appeared to them the best for the Prince's Voyage. The reason of not sending the drafts in the first instance is that Lord Spencer understands understands they would delay the Voyage, and as the probability of interruption seemed much less at the present moment than at a little time hence, it appeared desirable to avoid this delay. Commodore Payne will be instructed (if Your Majesty should approve this plan) either to look into the Sessel himself, or to send one of his Ships to do so, and it is besides supposed that the most accurate information may be obtained in this respect at Stade or at Hamburgh.

As it is now so late before this arrangement could be settled, and as His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales might probably choose to write by the Prebenger who goes to Lord Malmsbury, Lord Grenville has

The violence which echoed so loudly at a distance has been tolerably silenced by my appearance. Indeed I am well convinced that nothing was further from the expectation of people in power here than that I should really fulfill my engagement of coming hither.

The Mass of Evidence which I have procured is great & decisive: I do not call it satisfactory for in truth it affords a picture that inspires horror. If I am forced to produce this shocking detail, it will not be my fault. Dr Bellamont came to me on the afternoon of my arrival. He told me he was excessively grieved to hear that I had taken notice something supposed to have been said by Lord Dillon in the House of Lords; as the latter had assured him the statement in the papers was absolutely false. I replied that unfortunately the Record remained uncontradicted, and that if Lord Dillon lamented the misrepresentation, as he professed, it ought to occur to him as necessary to take an immediate opportunity of publicly disclaiming the offensive words.

I added that I should leave it entirely to Lord Dillon's own feelings to do away the dissatisfaction, or by his silence to abide by what was published.

Mr. Parnell came back yesterday & told me Lord Dillon meant to take the earliest occasion in the House to disclaim the language, & to profess the most complimentary opinion towards me. I replied that I should meet it handsomely. This will satisfy the Government folks exceedingly, as they have been all along pushing him forward.

Mr Pitt thinks it his Duty humbly to acquaint your Majesty that he has learn'd from a Conversation to Day with Lord Speer, and also from what has reach'd Lord Grenville thro' another Channel, that it would be very gratifying to the Duke of Portland if he could be enabled to propose to Lord Fitzwilliam that on his return here he should remain a member of the Cabinet.

Mr Pitt does not think it at all probable that Lord Fitzwilliam would accept the proposal. He sees however no inconvenience if he should, as there is no doubt of Lord Fitzwilliam's Principles on the great Questions now depending here, and as

Wm. Pitt

7773 (2)

his whole conduct while he was in the cabinet, was very different from that which he has held under the guidance of others in Ireland. Mr Pitt's principal motive for submitting the proposal to your Majesty, arises from seeing how much the Duke of Portland has sacrificed

M^r Pitt.

his Feelings to an honourable Sense of his Duty to your Majesty's Service. Mr JA has not seen the least Ground to suppose that either the Duke of Portland him have had any Idea of retiring from Allen Würdichsten, Großmächtigsten König! und Fürst!

Allen gnädigsten Herr!

Die Prinzen Ernst von Mecklenburg Vorne sind zu Berlin, von da die in vorigen Tagen zu rückgekommen, sehr wohl aufgenommen worden, haben ihn übernommen Aufsicht bestmöglich und gütlich, und uns meine Freunden, von seiner gütlichen Briefe mir davon gütlich. Mündlich haben dieselben noch weiter mir gütlich: ob wären, von die mit zu Anwesenheit mit haben seitlich zwei Parteyen in Berlin an der Hilfe der einen Prinz der Prinz Heinrich, bannst ihn der unser Cabinet Minister

7766-7

Gräfen von Finckenstein, und ein andrer Prinz der Partey der General Bischofsweder und der neuen General Adjutant von Zastrow ein andrer erwünschte Partey sey für den Feindten, ein andrer aber für die Fortsetzung des Krieges; und obgleich der König und der Prinz von Preussen im Grunde mehr für den Krieg als für den Feindten zu stimmen seyn; so haben dennoch der Prinz Heinrich von Preussen zu dem Feindten Unter-sündlungen zu Amsterdamm gewußt und im geheimlichen Umständen über den Weg weg genommen: Der Cabinet Minister Graf Hauchwitz flötete gewisse beiden Stimmungen und der Fürst von Alvensleben wurde mehr für einen Hofmann, als für einen Cabinet Minister.
Der Prinz von Preussen hat zum Kriegwunsche mit dem Prinzen Ernst sehr abgethan und von Zeit zu Zeit im Ueberflusse gedenken: Der Prinz Ernst hat sehr abgethan genommen afun einen Vorwissen nicht zu schreiben, und ein sehr gnädiges Antwort schreiben, von Ihr Königes Majestät mir mitzuberichten.

Der Flügel Adjutant von Wenckstern ist vor einigen Tagen aus der Armee zu rück gekommen mit der Nachricht; daß ein Ems von Lingen bis Emden durch unglückliche Troupen besetzt ist, und daß von der Insel auf 4 Bataill. in Emden dergleichen eingewandert sind. Ubrigens hat derselben nichts in nachwendig mitzuberichten.

In dem nächsten Tagen wird der kaiserliche Monarch Wurz werden mit einem Commando des Generals der Infanterie Fürst Ernst Dürck von dem General Lieutenant Duplat mit dem General Major von Linsingen begleitet 9 Bataill. und 8 Escad. von dem in Landen befindlichen Troupen nach der Stunde marchiren und die in dem inzwischenigen Bericht vom 11^{ten} Feb. an genzeigte Stellung zur Vertheidigung der Mündung der Weser aufnehmen. Der General Quast des Fürsten wird nach Oldenburg kommen und selbst an dem Fürst von Oldenburg dem Könige Ministerio geschrieben worden. und dem General Vreut! Duplat habe ich, nur mit dem Ministerio genommenen Abreden gemäss, beyen auch mich zugetragen mit guter Manier die Ruffe Stadt Bremen zu besetzen.

Das neue Battⁿ des 2^{ten} Infanterie Regt wird in Osnabruck hinge, wovon 200 Mann zur Besetzung des Districts zu Bentheim detachirt sind amden in Osnabruck, und das vacante 7^{te} Infanterie Regt von dem Busche wird nach in Hameln. Da mich ein hiesiger Gefannter Mißthun wünschet, daß von der Hand ein Cavalerie Regt im Land zu rück bleiben, so habe ich das 8^{te} Regt von Esterz dazu bestimmt.

Mit der besten Hochachtung Ihre ergebene
L. S.
Ihrer Königl. Majestät

General Freitag
Feby 26. 1795
