2nd June 1798

Mr Dundas humbly transmits for your Majesty's approbation the accompanying draft n<sup>o</sup> 1. together with the answer from His Royal Highness the Duke of York n<sup>o</sup> 2. and the proposed letter to The Duke of Portland n<sup>o</sup> 3.

It is with sincere Reluctance Mr Dundas has been induced to consent to send so much of the small regular force in the Country to Ireland, but considering the danger of the Rebellion extending itself so far, as to place the Harbour of Cork & Waterford in the Possession of the Rebels, and consequently of France, Mr Dundas does not feel it possible not to advise your Majesty to concur in the measure as now proposed and arranged.

Sir,

I take the earliest opportunity to acknowledge the Receipt of Your Letter of this days date, in which You convey to Me the Sentiments of His Majesty's Servants respecting the Request made by the Irish Government to obtain an immediate Reinforcement for the Service of that Country and desire to be informed of the greatest disposable Force of Infantry which can be sent to Ireland.

In compliance with which I bore no time in acquainting You, that the following are the only Corps in Great Britain, Jersey and Guernsey which in My Opinion can be sent at the present moment to that Kingdom.

Henry Dundas

In order to explain to You exactly the Reasons which induce Me to state these Corps as alone fit to be employed on that Service, I think it right to lay before You the exact Situation and Composition of every other Regiment in Great Britain Dorsey and Guernsey besides the Brigade of Guards.

The 1st, 10th, 23rd, 49th, 50th, 51st and 52nd Regiments are almost entirely composed of Irish.

The 1st Batt<sup>on</sup> of the Royals, 15th, 21st, 25th, & 79th Regiments are now Recruits, though great care has been taken that no Irish should be enlisted into them.

The 16th, 22nd, 34th and 65th Regiments are ordered to recruit none but Boys.

The 5th, 9th, 20th, 31st, 35th, 44th, 46th, 48th, 55th, 62nd and 85th Regiments are employed in Recruiting from the Supplementary Militia, but I am sorry to say that their success has been so much short of what I had a Right to expect, that by the Return of last week, the whole of those Corps together had only enlisted 1513 Men, whom it is now intended to form into three Battalions, and the 44th, 48th and 55th are the Regiments proposed to receive them

8 them. It will however be near a month before the different Detachments can be assembled and then the Battalions must be allowed a certain time to be trained before they can be fit for any service.

The 61st Regiment is composed of the few Quota Men who were furnished by the Parishes under the Act of the last Session of Parliament, and made up with Desertors and Irish Recruits.

In order to replace the Battalions of Grenadiers which are in Jersey and Guernsey and which have already received orders to be in readiness to embark for Ireland, I propose that the 5th and 23rd Regiments should be sent to Guernsey and the 49th to Jersey, which Corps with the Recruits ordered ordered to join them will fully replace in numbers those taken from those Islands.

I think it right before I conclude to call your Attention to the following Circumstance, which is, that when the Force proposed to be sent to Ireland is sailed and the Prisons have taken place in consequence in the Islands of Jersey and Guernsey there will only remain the 10th Regiment in Great Britain in a state to be detached upon any immediate Service.

I am Sir,

Yours

The Duke of Portland humbly begs leave to lay before your Majesty the dispatches he has received this morning from the Lord Lieutenant by which it appears that very considerable advantages have been gained over the Rebels & that the communication with Cork & Limerick is again open - The Duke of Portland has to observe to Your Majesty that the letter from Sir James Duff mentioned by the Lord Lieutenant to be enclosed, has been by some mistake omitted, & that the post was left Dublin at twelve on Tuesday night

Vienna Jun 4th 1798.

I could <sup>not</sup> venture to say, that the climate of Germany had produced the last dangerous fit of <sup>the</sup> Asthma H. R. H. the Pr. A. suffered at his entrance in Germany, especially if I consider the irregular manner the Pr. lived in the last time at Naples.

However it seems to me certain, that the cold & damp season of this country, will prove hurtful to H. R. H. health. Both, the experience of nearly seven years, & the theory about his constitution, show to me equally clear, the bad influence, the autumn & winter will have, in the Pr.'s constitution.

For as often, as the cutaneous perspiration is suppressed, this matter falls upon the lungs, & produces asthma, & nothing suppresses the perspiration easier, than cold & damp weather, which is during six months the case in Germany.

It is difficult for me, to propose an abode for next winter, as political circumstances, of which I am not informed, have a great influence, in this plan.

Neither do I exactly know the degree of warmth, & the quantity of rain in the southern part of England, to be able to propose this.

Perhaps did Pisa or Lisbon answer best the purpose: — the first would be more advantageous on account of it's vicinity.

Dr. H. D. Douceier
Enc. 68892-4

But should there be an absolute impossibility of leaving even Germany, I think Berlin would be a less hurtful place for the winter, on account of it's sandy soil, & consequently dryer atmosphere.

I add to this, that a very <sup>regular</sup> & quiet life can make up some difficulties, the climate opposes to the constitution of H. R. H. But as quietness & regularity are so necessary conditions for the Pr's good health, he should not remove from Vienna, as long as reasons for the preservation of his constitution can decide, till a proper plan is made out, where he could fix.

Travelling must be avoided as much as possible, for it is impossible, to keep to regular hours, though nothing is so necessary, for the preservation of the Prince's good health

Sir Morton Den having informed me that at presence sets out in an hour for London, I cannot refuse my self the Satisfaction of Congratulating your Majesty on the presence Augustus getting safe out of Italy and of his perfect recovery, from the late very dangerous attack of Asthma, which alarmed me very much, now thank God he is well and I flatter my self by regular Diet Exercise &c he may be kept free of a relapse, at least during the warm weather; By the note from Doctor Dornier your Majesty will see that

The prince could not with safety live in any part of Germany; during this summer I hope a proper plan may be adopted to remove the prince to some milder climate

Your Majesty will be pleased to hear that Her Royal Highness has met with the most cordial and friendly reception from the Emperor and every branch of the Imperial Family, and still more so, when I assure your Majesty that the prince's conduct at Vienna meets with the approbation of the whole Court, and nobility of this place. Since we left Naples I have not had it in power to say that the prince has once deviate from what is perfectly proper for a prince of the blood Royal of England and I now flatter my self he will continue

 I will not trouble your Majesty with the many pleased to approve my conduct in removing the prince, I will be perfectly happy.

 It is justice to the King and Queen of Naples when I mentioned the danger of the prince going in a sloop of war, the French having given orders to two frigates to take the prince at all risks; The King most generously ordered French frigates keep at a respectable distance.

The King said he would rather risk his crown than the prince Augustus not be protected, becoming a son of the King of England.

When an opportunity offers I hope your Majesty may have the goodness to thank the King and Queen of Naples, nothing could exceed the Queens tenderness to the prince, and powerful protection to me.

I have sent Mrs Gott an exact state of the prince's household such as I found it on my arrival at Naples, and the annual amount of the expences, and begd of him to send a credit here for the support of the prince: when the exact sum is paid for her household.

and His Royal Highness's pocket money, then I will act accordingly. I beg your Majesty may be graciously pleased to order proper Instructions to be sent me, and Credit for the Support of the prince; at present I have not much money, and without, it is not easy to act with propriety.

I should fail in my duty if I did not inform your Majesty of the very respectful attention paid to His Majesty's Prince Augustus nothing can exceed his anxiety to see the prince appear as He ought in this Country, his advice, and example, will be of great service, every person in this Country is inclined to show the prince every mark of respect and they are all much pleased with His Royal Highness's behaviour. your Majesty

The report of Mr Macpherson having been considered by Lord Spencer, & others of His Majesty's Ministers, as very interesting, the outline is submitted, with the profoundest reverence & Duty, to His Majesty.

As the name & Conduct of the French Comissary Petitot should remain as secret as possible, Sir John Hippisley has taken the liberty to transmit the enclosed account, sealed, to His Majesty.

12 June 1798

Sir John Hippisley, Secy<sup>m</sup>
Enclosure

8912 - 3

After the confiscation of the Property of the British & Irish Colleges in Rome, Mr. Macpherson (who had the superintendance of the Scotch College) departed from Rome with the charge of Twenty British & Irish Students, to whom the French Commissioners had given 200 Crowns each for their Journey.

They landed at Genoa & from thence proceeded to Nice, Marseilles, Lyons, Paris, to Gravelines.

An embargo continuing 17 Days at Gravelines Mr M. procured a Passport from the French Commissary, (whom he represents to be extremely well affected to the good Cause) to visit the Ports of Boulogne, Calais & Dunkirk, leaving the Students at Gravelines.

He states that there were only 4 Gun Boats at Boulogne - 5 at Calais - 11 at Dunkirk - 5 at Gravelines - & 3 at S'omers:- that many of these were not finished - that they were about 60 feet in length but were not so substantial as a Thames Wherry + appeared rather to be (+ each made for 2 Guns one before the other aft) constructed for the amusement of the People than for any real Service. At Celaio there were 1000 Infantry - at Grevelines 800 - at Dunkerque between 4 & 500 - at Boulogne fewer. He saw no Cavalry in the Northern Provinces.

He travelled in Company with a Merchant of Brest going to Holland, who said that it was with the utmost difficulty that the Seamen could be prevailed on to work at all, being extremely despirited, & exclaiming "we are sure to be taken Prisoners by the English the moment we are out of Port". It did not appear that any Project of a descent on our Coasts was in contemplation, from the Northern Parts of France, & most, with whom he communicated, were of opinion that the Toulon equipment was destined for the Coast of Spain & to cross over to Portugal from Malaga.

Sir John Hippisley, Secy<sup>m</sup>
Enclosure

8913

The Transports which he saw taken up at Civita Vecchia - Genoa - & Marseilles - were so slight & ill equipped that he could not imagine they were destined for any service out of the Mediterranean.

He represents the Country to be generally, but extremely ill cultivated - principally by old men, women & & children - & says that the produce of a British Acre of good culture here would exceed 20 of the best French Acres that he saw from the South to the North of France. The Inhabitants in general seem not to declaim violently against the existing Government - The Streets of Lyons & Marseilles were deserted, it was rare to find a whole Pane of Glass in the best Houses in those Towns - The roads in the worst State - He met with the extreme civility in every Part of France except at Aire on Artois which appeared to him to be the only Saccharin Town he had seen.

Sir J. Kippely introduced Mr Macpherson to Lord Spencer, the Speaker, Mr Davidson &c. to whom he produced his general Reports of the particular order of the French Commissioners of Grevelines by which he was authorized to make the Detour by Boulogne - Calais & Dunkirk. The Commission opined him that it would take 40 millions of money to repair the Damage of ostende & he doubted whether it could ever be repaired under the present Government - "would to God (exclaims "the Commission) that 40,000 of your Troops instead "of 2 or 3000 had made a Descent on our Coasts;
"It would have given confidence to our oppressed "People & you would have seen our Nation

It is with extreme concern that the Duke of Portland lays before Your Majesty the dispatches which have been received this morning from the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland which contain the account of the Insurrection which has taken place in the County of Wexford, although he hopes from the very great force which is quartered in that part of the Island the confidence with which Mr. General M'gill speaks of the support he looks to & the disposition of the loyal part of the Inhabitants that this appearance of Rebellion will be speedily & effectually subdued. The Duke of Portland humbly begs to shew to Your Majesty that he has presumed to withhold the extracts of all those Letters mentioned for publication by the Lord Lieutenant of which the originals are submitted to Your Majesty & that the list of persons apprehended in the North by Mr Pitt humbly begs leave to acquaint your Majesty that in consequence of the spirited offers received from different Regiments of Militia, and the necessity of providing means to strengthen, if circumstances should require it, the Pre Inforcements already sent to Ireland, It has appeared to your Majesty's servants to be essential to obtain an Act, before the End of the Report to empower your Majesty to avail yourself of the voluntary offers of a certain Proportion of the Militia for Service in Ireland during the present Crisis. With this View Mr Pitt humbly submits to your Majesty the Measures which have been prepared to both Houses, and which if your Majesty them may pass with the utmost expedition. Mr Pitt is persuaded that the Impression alone of this Measure will produce the most salutary Effect in Ireland, both in the present Moment and in future.

Callands here 17 1790

Sir

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Majesty's most gracious letter, and beg leave to return Your Majesty my most humble thanks for Your gracious enquires after my health, I am now in a manner well though still exceedingly weak, Doctor Pleasance says, that I have had the Ankerpin in my Mouth

I am thoroughly sensible of the necessity which Your Majesty's reasons of sending proper Major Generals with the different Corps of English Militia, which it may be thought expedient to send to Ireland, and which I understand from Mr Dundas who arrived here soon after I received Your Majesty's Letter is intended to be limited to 10000 men.

We have agreed of it meets with Your Majesty's Approbation, that in order to avoid all the difficulties of which might arise with regard to the Colonels of Militia and the Brigades now serving in Ireland, that the Brigades of English Militia which are to go, are to be considered upon the English Establishment, in the same manner as the two Brigades of the Guards and the Line already there, so as to be kept entirely distinct from the Irish Army

It is leave to propose to Your Majesty that Major General Hunter, should be ordered to take the command of the Brigade of Militia consisting of the Buckinghamshire and Warwick, as I understand that the Colonels of both these Regiments having known him in the Eastern District will be very happy to serve under him, and that

Duke of York to 10000 men. Major General Sir James Bullmer should be Your Majesty appointed to the Brigade at Waterford in the place the difficulties of Major General Hunter.

In consequence of the additional number of Major Generals that their new Arrangements will require to be placed upon them as well as upon the Lord Staff, and that it is now impossible to supply I find myself under the necessity though with great reluctance to propose to Your Majesty a partial promotion of Colonels to Major Generals down to Colonel Wemyss in consequence of that I trust that Your Majesty will see the necessity as there has been already this year a large promotion in every other Rank, and as there is hereby a reason of necessity, I shall not recommend the Your Majesty to extend it any further.

I am sorry to be under the necessity of reporting to Your Majesty, the Death of Major General

William Cooke who made away with himself at Portsmouth yesterday, he had appeared very few and unwell for some time, and was undoubtedly under the influence of Mental Derangement.

The senior General Officers without Regiments who have the strongest Claims to Your Majesty's Favour, are Major General Shastone, and his former General Shastone's conduct at the late Affairs at New Bris is spoken of by all the Officers who were present as most exemplary. Perhaps Your Majesty may approve of removing some General Officer who has already a young Regiment to the <sup>to</sup> end of appointing Major General Shastone to succeed in the first instance to a young Regiment, in that case I beg leave to mention the names of Major General James Hunter, and Monhead.

I have the Honour to be, Sir

Your Majesty's

Most Dutifully Obedient Servant

Sir

I trust that Your Majesty will pardon my intruding upon You with this Letter, but as the time of the Camp in Windsor (Orders being assembled is drawing near, it is necessary that the General Officers who are to be employed there, should be acquainted with it as soon as possible

It is leave therefore to recommend to Your Majesty that as the Camp is to be composed totally of Cavalry Lieutenant General Sir Robert Laurie should be ordered there instead of Lieutenant General Mordaunt, so by that means there would be no General Officer of Cavalry in the Southern District that Major General Lord Pembroke should be ordered to his first destination at Canterbury and that Major General Mordaunt should take the command of the Brigade intended for Lord Pembroke.

and as a Major General is necessary to be posted at Doncaster that Major General Lord Charles Somerset should be put upon the Staff and that when he is gone as Major General Gault can resume his post then Lord Charles Somerset may be otherwise disposed of
