Hartlebury Nov^r 1st 1799

Sir

I am extremely honoured by your Majesty's gracious Letter of the 29th from Windsor, & for the small packet inclosing it, w^{ch} contains the Prorector's Oration on the Prize Essay of Göttingen, & Dr Majendie's Prayer. I beg leave to return my humble thanks to your Majesty for both these fresh instances of your condescending goodness to me.

The Prorector's Oration, w^{ch} I have hastily run over, seems well calculated to serve the true interests of learning, & of your Majesty's University, & is a reasonable admonition to the learned of all places.

Dr Majendie's Prayer, being shorter, I have read with more care and think the title of Excellent, w^{ch} your Majesty is pleased to give it, is most justly deserved. I hope these efforts of your clergy, which appear to have been general, will contribute ^{to receive in} that all sense of their religious & civil duties, w^{ch} it so much concerns them to have, and which your Majesty uses every means of recommending to them by your own example, & by the zeal You have ever expressed for the admirable constitution it hath pleased God to bestow upon us both in Church & State. Your Subjects, Sir, have only to pray to God that He will continue to bless your endeavours for the public good, & to make themselves truly sensible of the deep obligations they have to their Sovereign, & of the duty they owe him.

Hitherto thou hast, in great mercy, preserved us from those National Calamities, by which the People of other Governments have been desolated and overwhelmed: Inspire us with a lively and sincere Gratitude for such inestimable Blessing. Suffer not the confidence in Human Measures, nor the reliance on the Arm of Flesh to intoxicate and seduce our hearts; but teach us to refer all Public Successes to thine infinite Wisdom, and the right hand of thy Power. Continue to go forth with our Fleets and Armies: And be thou to us, O Lord, a strong Tower against the face of the Enemy: So we, who are thy People, and the sheep of thy Pasture, will ever be praising thee, from generation to generation.

When H. H. Highness the Duke of Kent was last in England he expressed both your Majesty's, and his own Sentiments towards me in a manner, which H. H.
Highness must have felt would be highly gratifying to me. The gracious Reception indeed, which I have uniformly experienced, has long since induced me to cherish the Hope that your Majesty was not wholly dissatisfied either with my past Services or my present Conduct.

Among various other marks of attention H. H. Highness then offered to make any Application to your Majesty's Ministers on my Behalf, which I should think proper.

If I had thought myself justified in accepting such an offer I should have told H. M. Highness that according to the common course of human events the Treasurership of the Ordnance would very soon become vacant; that in the present state of my Family, & Circumstances the acquisition of it would be a considerable object to me; and that if H. M. Highness thought me worthy of the situation an application on that subject would entitle him to a due return of my grateful acknowledgments.

But if I had accepted any such Mediation your Majesty well knows that I should have violated one of the most express Conditions under which I originally entered into your royal Service, and that in every such Case it was the Line of my Duty to make a direct application to your Majesty.

In having presumed to mention

The above Circumstances I repose myself on your Majesty's accustomed Benevolence, in the fullest assurance that after a Period of Twenty Years the Wish of a Servant approbation, originating with your Majesty, will be thought neither presumptuous nor obtrusive.

With the highest Sentiments of Respect I have the honor to be convinced of the propriety of my conduct and I must say in confidence to Mr Pitt of the great impropriety at least of that of Mr. Dundas from the beginning of the business. I shall certainly and I feel I am right not object to hearing what Mr. Pitt may have to say on the subject when I see him on Wednesday, and as I am certain he is not fully apprised of the unaccountable steps that have been taken I will have the papers laid before him after that conversation, as I am certain however he may feel for others he would be much more mortified at my acting a part unbecoming myself and open to real blame.

Upon consideration of

of the last dispatches humbly to submit to His Majesty that it may be proper so far to vary the last instruc-

Lord Minto and Lord Mulgrave to represent to the Austrian Govern-is desirous of receiving a communication of the opinion of the Court of Vienna respecting the manner manner in which the combined efforts of the allies may be employed in the next Campaign most to the advantage of the Common Cause.

And that if those ideas, being so communicated, should concur with those entertained by His Majesty, and already explained to His Majesty's Minister at Vienna, or should appear in general to be likely to promote the objects which His Majesty has in view, Lord Mulgrave should be instructed to proceed to

to Marshall Suwarrows Head-quarters and to endeavour to obtain His acquiescence in them, in order that they may then be jointly recommended to the Court of Petersburg.
It being always understood that the joining to the Russian Army a large body of Austrian force, and the adoption of all the necessary measures for the supply of the Army so formed, are indispensable conditions of His Majesty's concurrence in these plans, and that if these conditions are refused His Majesty is determined

to recommend it to the Emperor of Russia to with-draw his troops entirely from all cooperation with those of Austria, and wish Himself withhold all further pecuniary aid for any such purpose.

But that if these condi-tions are complied with, and a proper plan in these respects duly arranged between the Allies in con-sequence of this overture, His Majesty would in that case agree to make pecu-niary exertions for the reinforcement of the Russian

Russian Army to the extent, and in the manner stated in the last instruc-

Sir,

In answer to your letter of the 24th I must observe that it is far from my intention to offer promotion to any Officer in the Supplementary Battalions which might place over your head an Officer of equal rank to yourself. But I conceive it to be my absolute duty to offer the supernumerary Lt Colonelship to the Colonels and Lt. Colonels of those Corps for whom it was designed by Government. When Mrs. Howe communicated to Lord Gower yesterday the hints she had received from your Majesty, she learnt that having thought it his Duty, from the opinion he had formed of the spirit of the act of Parliament, to offer to name to the supernumerary Lieutenant Colonelcy, the two Colonels, and the two Lieut. Colonels of the Disbanded Battalions, he had already proposed it to Lord Granville Levison Gower, and he having declined it, to Colonel Elliot, from him, he has received as yet, no answer; the Lieut.
