Wimbleton, 3<sup>d</sup> March, 1800. 3 <sup>4</sup>/<sub>h</sub> m.

Mr Dundas humbly takes the liberty of mentioning to your Majesty that in consequence of the probability of General Lake going to India the Irish Staff became the subject of conversation at an interview here this morning at which His Royal Highness the Duke of York and Mr Pitt were present, and Mr Dundas took the liberty of suggesting the propriety of Lord Chatham being appointed to succeed General Lake, which would of course put him next to Lord Cornwallis in the efficient command of the army in Ireland. Mr Dundas was induced to make this suggestion in consequence of the communication your Majesty was pleased to make to him of your Majesty's views respecting Lord Chatham. The more Mr Dundas has thought of it, the more he is satisfied in every point of view that no arrangement could be so beneficial to <sup>your</sup> Majesty's service. Both the Duke of York and Mr Pitt seemed 1830 to enter very strongly into the Propriety of the Suggestion made by Mr Dundas, and Mr Pitt proposed without delay to speak to His Brother Every thing therefore seems to depend on Lord Chatham's own Decision, but altho the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland is always within the line of Mr Dundas's official arrangements, We thought it his Duty to put your Majesty confidentially in possession of those Particulars.

Palace York March 12th 1800

Lord Auckland was honour'd some months ago by a gracious intimation of your Majesty's disposition to give a packet-boat to a deserving Officer of the Navy, whose name, Lord Auckland thinks, was mention'd at the time.

A vacancy is now made on the Falmouth Station by the sudden death of Captain

Dillon

Dillon; and Lord Auckland will be most happy to make the nomination conformably to your Majesty's Commands at any convenient interval of time.

The situation (which should be fill'd by an active & experienced Seaman) produces at first only from 400 £ to 800 £ a year: but there is a gradual rise; and the five senior Commanders do not gain less than from 1000 £ to 1500 £ per An. —

Having at last obtained leave to make a little use of my right hand, I beg leave to return Your Majesty my most dutiful thanks for Your very gracious Letter, as well as for Your affectionate sollicitude about me, I am, thank God daily recovering, though still in much pain, that I can't or make any exertion. However the Surgeons are anxious that I should go out of Town as soon as possible for a week or ten days, and flatter me with the hopes of being able to bear the journey to Colchester by sea Saturday.

I beg leave also to lay before Your Majesty the Draft of a Letter from the Adjutant General to the Secretary at War in Your Majesty's name on the Subject of the Pay of Officers returned about twelve Cannon, as the Willfull Disobedience of orders to fire is increasing to a very unpleasant pitch

In consequence of intelligence communicated by the Admiralty of the possibility of an attempt being made upon Plymouth in case the French Fleet should come out, and escape the vigilance of Your Majesty's Fleet, I then ordered the Duke and Welsh Regiments to march into the South west District, as well as the two Hampshire Regiments of Militia and the Shroff Gloucesters, Lieutenant General Grenville has also been directed to return

Sir

The gracious Letter, I have this day the honour to receive from your Majesty, affords me the highest possible satisfaction. After the good character I had always heard of Dr. Mejs, and the evidence he had given of his merits at Weymouth, I assured myself that his appointment to serve in your Court, in the absence of your disabled Clerk, would not be unacceptable to your Majesty. I was besides anxious to bring into that attendance on your Majesty, a person, that might be no unworthy successor to the late Bishop of Chester, whose promotion is a fresh instance of your Majesty's care of us.

I was infinitely alarmed by an accident, which lately happened, but hope the danger is over, and that your Majesty & Royal family are relieved from all apprehension on that subject.

What your Majesty hints, in

The close of your Letter, concerning the Westminster inscription, is so flattering to the writer, that he ought to make a particular acknowledg<sup>ment</sup> of it; & yet his merit consist only in this, that he used but few words in giving the character of his friend, and those plain ones. But this is an instance, among many others, of your Majesty's accustomed indulgence and partiality to,
