Sir Joseph Banks begs leave humbly to submit the enclosed plan for the sale of Rams & Ewes out of your majesties Spanish Flock hoping that it may be found conformable to the Ideas on that subject which your Majesty did Sir Joseph the honor to approve last if this Plan is honored with your majesties approbation, it may be published as an appendix to a Pamphlet on wool which Mr Sheffield will publish in a few days at the Request of Mr Pitt, by which means it will be put into the hands of most of the woollen manufacturers at once, & it may also be circulated in a separate sheet, which Sr.

putting into the hands of most of the great sheep breeders, at the Duke of Bedford's Sheep

Telee yard - June 7th 1800

Lord Auckland hopes that in sending the enclosed small work he has not presumed too much on your Majesty's gracious goodness & favour. It was thought that this publication might have an useful effect in many points of view, both as serving to explain a question of serious importance to the public mind & morals, & as serving to convey some salutary intimations & truths to all of both sexes whom it may concern. As such Lord Auckland hopes that he has not done wrong in presuming humbly to lay it at your Majesty's feet. —

Saturday June 7th 1800

Mr Pitt is persuaded your Majesty will have the goodness not to disapprove his venturing humbly to submit to your Majesty consideration, a Circumstance which appears in many views to be of great public Importance.
Your Majesty is probably informed that Lord Carlisle has made a Complaint to the House of Lords of a Breach of Privilege, founded on an Account in a Newspaper of a Charge stated to be given by Lord Kenyon

To a Jury, in a recent action on account of Aulberg; which Charge Lord Carleton considers as containing Reflections on himself for his Language in Parliament, and on those who voted against the Bill for the prevention of Aulberg, in the House of Lords. The Complaint is in the first Instance, in point of Form against the Printer, but is evidently aimed against Lord Kenyon, of whose Personal Merits Mr Pitt knows your Majesty's Opinion, and whose Station renders the Support of his Credit and Authority, a Point of no small Interest to the Administration of Justice and to the Character of Government. - On this Account It appears to most of your Majesty's Servants to be highly necessary to resist such a Proceeding, for which (on its own merits) there seems to be no sufficient Ground; as the Charge refers not to any particular Deer, ~~for~~ the Proceedings of the House of Lords, but to Newspaper Statements of Sentiments said to be recently delivered, which the Chief Justice supposes, to have been actually expressed, and which he seems to have thought himself bound to counteract, lest they should have an undue influence on the minds of the jury

There would be probably ~~no~~ little difficulty on the question, were it not that the heats which was raised on the Bill lately depending appears to extend to this question, and in particular that The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Clarence and Cumberland are supposed to be taking a very active part in support of Lord Carlisle's Complaint.

The Mischief which must arise from such an Influence exerted on such an occasion, directed Personally against Lord Kingon and in Opposition to the Line which your Majesty's Ministers must feel themselves bound to support with the Weight of Government, is but too obvious. And (if the Subject appears to your Majesty in the Light in which Mr Pitt has viewed it) your Majesty may possibly not be unwilling to convey such an Intimation as may prevent the Princes from persisting in what is understood to be their present intention. - Mr Pitt deeply regretting being under the necessity of intruding their Considerations on your Majesty. He will only take the Liberty of adding that the Consideration of Lord Charles's Complaint is fixed for Tuesday next.

Windsor June 7th 1800

On reading the Minutes of the House of Lords and the Account in the Newspapers of what passed on Friday concerning a complaint of the Earl of Castle which is to be taken into consideration on Tuesday; I should not do my Duty if I did not point out what a very bad effect it would have in the World if you joined in supporting this Complaint; for though it appears only as affecting the Printers of a Newspaper, it is certainly meant against the Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench acting in his Judicial Capacity, and not mentioning any Person, but if truly stated only condemning opinions, which whenever broached were those of Men of loose principles, not those worthy of commendation or adulation.
The Majority of this Country how ever custom may have weakened the opinions of some Men, view the conduct of the Lord Chief Justice in its true light as that of a worthy and upright Man wishing to support the Laws of Religion and of this Country, and consequently would feel particularly hurt as well as my self if any of my family could countenance this Attack; I am certain it cannot be necessary for Me to add more but that I wish You should use hold that conduct which may make You respected, and that I ever remain latter view he would be extremely gratified would in this case be the Junior Member of be proposed that he should be a Privy Counsellor, but as there can be (by the Act) only two be necessary in order to make the vacancy
