My dear Brother

This has been a most shocking trial during the King's recent and sad illness in the state, after 7 hours of quiet sleep he awoke this morning more restless than ever. One two of his sheets & under was so hot that a trial was called for & he remained under confinement for two hours - The King was sent in before he was at liberty and was unable to feel his Pulse or speak to him - They got him up between 9 & 10 o'clock dressed him
by force & carried him

into the next room
It appears to be a sort of total temper & great obstinacy as he will not take any movement without a review of the business I with the heavy, it being of course that is more easily done than more not to be granted
so he refused his services & all for
since his breakfast
this morning. He has attempted to make himself any other to day and can travel to pull off all the buttons

of his Court & Household, which was stopped by the King as well as they could John Buller would and put the R. under restraint because the family of
was in effect at all in the King, & this
off as it did to find
attempted to speak
unprofitable but to make some sense
and at the time
the R. would be better

He was not expected to
10 - all agree they were
prevent our commencing
to build you a grand Secretary

To Othello

My dear Brother This has been a very quiet day only occasional bursts of rage against some of his ungenerous company - The dinner was eat well & the King dropped asleep at 7 o'clock & did not wake till 9 when they observed him to go to bed which he did willingly, but he had not sooner got to bed than he began pulling the bed clothes & such violence took place as to require restraint & force the appearance is that the R will keep a bad night - The Countess May was made but a very independent report to day as they found the King looking very ill but had nothing to propose - The Countess May was seen to come down in a fortnight to time I hope you are better
Yours
Wadey
