My dear Mr. Carter

The King passed a thorough quiet morning, a violent burst of rage took place at dinner time which was again put down by John Bullis speaking to the King The talking was continued here on his all day to day & the King put in the same state in constant conversation with his ladies or messenger friends towards evening had been more irritable - The King took a 2<sup>d</sup> dose of James's Powder at five o'clock with the usual pill & asked me on two questions to see how he felt about the matter &c &c just enough to prove he knew what he was about, but we left them there. I'm sure most of talking to his bed I don't by all I can make out plus Willis thinks it is just possible he may by degrees get the key into better management & you make him more comfortable to himself & there about twice but I don't believe any of the My own part with the

that the key was your more proofs of proving cable, think

my letter as to the King, what state I hope you see better Yours
Mdus

MS. A. 17. 2. 126

My dear Mr. Butler

This has been a day of great happiness and enjoyment to the King - He has passed his time in constant talking to his unimaginary friends, & from the hour he was dropped this morning has been in great good humour & high spirits - He dropping
John Bull's thought it proper
to the King & since words dropped & John Bull's says it had the effect of quieting the King Robert Walter in the other hand says

could he does not think so, because I hope the King after he was duped
into the next room therefore was carried & if the King really had been got the letter of Sir John Wallis's conversation during the duping, he certainly would have <sup>not</sup> resisted me immediately after - The King has never been worse seen to humil thum to day at times very glo but certainly quite happy with himself - He must be quite but in appearance of sleep but I never had in sleep in the course of the day -

I hope you are better

Yours

Marcy
